

We are whole-life advisors: we work with a variety of project delivery organisations, who operate at several tiers of the construction and engineering industry.

We guide clients (as their part in the project requires): all the way through pre-conception or vision; corporate and contract strategy; procurement; contract negotiation; project delivery; commissioning, completion and handover; and then supporting the project's passage into operations, maintenance and legacy.

We advise on all aspects of project delivery: project strategy, contracts, claims and disputes, and risk management and insurance strategies, as well as broader organisational infrastructure support to ensure contracts can be managed effectively and efficiently by the business's functions.

We advocate confident and competent contract and commercial management: we focus on putting law in its practical and purposive context (hence SCL's strapline). We are sensitive to the people (resources) aspect of project delivery.

We draw on our field experience: enabling us to work cross-functionally, supporting executive-level functions acute to the daily need to deliver business objectives and value to clients.

We specialise: in law relating to construction and engineering.

We support your learning needs and accelerate development: we design training workshops and programmes for industry, and partner with leading organisations and educational establishments. Our training is consistently rated as excellent, due to its rich content delivered with energy and expertise.

We are active in volunteering: our Director speaks regularly at industry and legal conferences, writes for various publications, and contributes to online forums.

We communicate: French, German and Spanish + English.

Making law work for the construction and engineering industry